The following categories describe the different ways in which we may use and disclose your PHI.

1. Treatment. Our agency may use your PHI to treat you. For example, we may ask you to have laboratory tests (such as blood or urine tests), and we may use the results to help us reach a diagnosis. We might use your PHI in order to have a prescription written for you, or we might disclose your PHI to a pharmacy when we order a prescription for you. Many of the people who work for our agency – including, but not limited to, our doctors and nurses – may use or disclose your PHI in order to treat you or to assist others in your treatment. Additionally, we may disclose your PHI to others who may assist in your care, such as your service coordinators, staff, day habilitations, relative and/or parent or guardians. Finally, we may also disclose your PHI to other health care providers for purposes related to your treatment.

2. Payment. _____ (Initials) Our agency may use and disclose your PHI in order to bill and collect payment for the services and items you may receive from us. For example, we may contact your health insurer to certify that you are eligible for benefits (and for what range of benefits), and we may provide your insurer with details regarding your treatment to determine if your insurer will cover, or pay for, your treatment. We also may use and disclose your PHI to obtain payment from third parties that may be responsible for such costs, such as family members. For example, a parent or guardian/relative may ask for it if they take you to the pediatrician's office for treatment of a cold. In this example, the relative may have access to this child's medical information.
